

RICHEST WOMAN IN ALL EUROPE LOOKS AND ACTS LIKE ANY OTHER MOTHER WOULD

Baroness de Rothschild With Her Children, Suzann and Henry.

Here is a new picture of the richest woman in all Europe, taken with her children at Paris, recently. She is the Baroness Henry de Rothschild, whose fortune is valued at about $400,000,000. But she insists that her two babies are worth more to her than all her gold.

Little Suzann, aged 3, and young Henry, aged 6, are the wealthiest young children in Europe. The Rothschild family, of which Henry may some day be the head, is the best known and richest banking family in Europe.

DIARY OF FATHER TIME

It has often surprised me that the number of animals man has succeeded in bringing into subjection is so small, having regard to the immense number of species from which he may select. All told they do not exceed twenty-six, including the elephant, camel, reindeer, llama, and yak.

I remember, some years ago, an attempt was made to test the possibilities of breeding that magnificent antelope, the eland, in captivity so as to increase the food supply. It was hoped that it would afford a welcome change from beef and mutton. But nothing came of the effort; while all attempts at taming the zebra as an additional beast of burden have proved unavailing.

The camel has been domesticated for thousands of years, yet there are no distinct breeds of these animals
